

DR. MELODY HERMAN

*Director of Regional Anesthesiology
Atrium Health Carolinas Medical Center,
Charlotte, NC*

Dr. Melody Herman is the Director of Regional Anesthesiology at Atrium Health Carolinas Medical Center in Charlotte, North Carolina, the region's only Level 1 trauma hospital.

She completed her anesthesiology residency at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital and her fellowship in regional anesthesiology and acute pain management at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Herman's passion for regional anesthesia in trauma patients is driven by the creativity and variety of approaches needed to achieve effective analgesia. She has also initiated an interdepartmental collaboration with the Emergency Medicine Ultrasound Fellowship Program.

This year marks Dr. Herman's first time contributing as faculty for the Asian and Oceanic Society of Regional Anaesthesia and Pain Medicine Congress, and she is delighted by the opportunity. She also serves as faculty for the American Society of Regional Anesthesia, the European Society of Regional Anaesthesia, and the American Society of Anesthesiologists annual conferences. She is the current Chair of the ASRA Private Practice Special Interest Group and represents the United States on the ESRA International Committee.

Beyond her professional endeavors, Dr. Herman enjoys creating educational and entertaining content on TikTok and Twitter, and she cherishes camping trips in the mountains with her two children.
